Mayor and City Council of Saskatoon City

We would like to thank you for recognizing the contributions of our father Hub Braithwaite by naming a park in his honour. Hub was a proud Saskatonian and was dedicated to the betterment of your city for its citizens. Your actions acknowledge the efforts of all those past community volunteers who have made a difference.

We would appreciate a notice when the dedication is so the Braithwaite family could attend.

A grateful Son
George Braithwaite

Naming Advisory Committee Report

Recommendation

That the Naming Advisory Committee issue direction with respect to the name submissions contained within this report.

Topic and Purpose

The Naming Advisory Committee (NAC) screens all requests and suggestions for naming or renaming municipally-owned or controlled facilities, streets, suburban development areas, neighbourhoods, and parks to ensure that each suggestion or request meets City Council guidelines for naming as set out in Naming of Civic Property and Development Areas Policy No. C09-008 (Naming Policy).

Report Highlights

1. A total of five names have been assigned from the Names Master List since the last NAC meeting.
2. The following naming submissions require screening; Gibson, Walko, Schmeiser, Whitehead, Fireside, Mallough, Klein, Loraas, Weiman, and Kalra.
3. Arbutus Properties has submitted a specific naming request for the name "Market Drive" to be applied to a street within the Rosewood neighbourhood.
4. Saskatoon Land has submitted a specific naming request for the name "Civic Square East" to be applied to the municipally-owned facility located at 202 4th Avenue North.
5. Requests for roadway renaming have been received from Saskatoon Land in the Hudson Bay Industrial and Marquis Industrial areas.

Strategic Goal

Under the Strategic Goal of Moving Around, this report supports the statement that Saskatoon is a city on the move and that growth has brought new roads and bridges that improve connectivity for all travel modes.

Background

According to the Naming Policy, all requests for naming from the Names Master List will be selected by His Worship the Mayor. All of the names on the Names Master List have been previously screened by the Naming Advisory Committee and meet City Council's guidelines for name selection. Name suffixes are circulated through the Administration for technical review.

Report

A. Names Assigned from the Names Master List

The following names have been assigned since the previous meeting:

- 1) Mahoney Park – Kensington neighbourhood;
- 2) Kensington Court – Kensington neighbourhood;
- 3) Rosewood Boulevard East – Rosewood neighbourhood;

Naming Advisory Committee Report

- 4) Stilling Lane – Rosewood neighbourhood; and
- 5) Meadows Parkway – Rosewood neighbourhood.

B. General Naming Requests

The following name submissions have been received and require screening:

1. "Gibson" – L. Murray Gibson was the owner of the family business, Gibson Photos, after it was established by his parents in 1925. He was also a war veteran, enlisting in the navy during the Second World War. He supported many events and causes, helping establish the Bridge City DixieLand Jazz Band as a builder, as well as providing photography services to the Saskatoon Hilltop Football Club. More information about this submission is attached (see Attachment 1).

The name Gibson is not on the Names Master List but there is a "Gibson Court" in the Hamlet of Merrill Hills, located southwest of the City within the Rural Municipality of Corman Park. If this name is added to the Names Master List, this information should be included.

2. "Walko" – Anton Walko was a furrier and tailor in the City of Saskatoon for many years. He repaired the buffalo coats worn by the Saskatoon City Police from the 1930s to 1950s, after which time they were replaced by cloth coats. As a member of the Ukrainian National Organization, he helped build the Avenue G Hall, where he also made and provided costumes for live theatre. He served in the Canadian Army during the First World War. More information about this submission is attached (see Attachment 2).
3. "Schmeiser" – Dr. Douglas A. Schmeiser is a Professor Emeritus of Law at the University of Saskatchewan. He is the recipient of a number of academic awards, has written numerous publications on the subject of law, and has served and volunteered on many offices and boards, as per his Curriculum Vitae. More information about this submission is attached (see Attachment 3).
4. "Whitehead" and "Fireside" – Marilyn Whitehead is a musician and leader within the arts and music community in Saskatoon. She is a member of the Saskatchewan Registered Music Teachers' Association, Saskatoon Musical Festival Committee, as well as the founder and artistic director of the Saskatoon Fireside Singers. As an artistic director, she has produced and directed eight fully-staged musicals. More information about this submission is attached (see Attachment 4).
5. "Mallough" – Earl David Mallough played a significant role in the development of the canola industry. Working for Agriculture Canada in the early 1970s, Mallough ensured the planting of low-erucic rapeseed and then full-fledged canola, increasing the marketability and value of the crop. He later became team leader for wheat production in Tanzania in the late 1970s. More information about this submission is attached (see Attachment 5).

6. "Klein" – Gerry Klein worked as a reporter, editor, and commentator at The StarPhoenix for more than 30 years. He retired on Friday, May 23, 2014. He informed the public in Saskatoon and shaped debate on municipal affairs. More information about this submission is attached (see Attachment 6).
7. "Loraas" – George Loraas worked for MacKenzie and Thayer for 30 years, starting out by hauling coal. He was the husband of Emma Loraas, who had five boys who all owned companies, including Loraas Disposal and Envirotec Services. More information about this submission is attached (see Attachment 7).
8. "Weiman" – Duane Weiman was a member of the Legislative Assembly representing Saskatoon Fairview. He was also an active member of the Pacific Heights Community, Parish Councils, the Saskatoon Teacher's Association, and the military. More information about this submission is attached (see Attachment 8).
9. "Kalra" – Dr. Jay Kalra is a nationally and internationally recognized physician who has demonstrated community and volunteer services. Currently, Dr. Kalra is a Professor of Pathology, College of Medicine, at the University of Saskatchewan. He is also a leader and community builder with several organizations, including the Multicultural Council of Saskatchewan, Hindu Society of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon United Way, Rotary Clubs in Saskatoon, and Heart and Stroke Foundation, among others. More information about this submission is attached (see Attachment 9).

C. Specific Naming Requests

"Market"

Arbutus Properties has requested that the name "Market" be added to the Names Master List and applied to a roadway in the Rosewood neighbourhood (see Attachment 10).

The developer has indicated that the name "Market" aligns with the marketing strategy for Rosewood as a neighbourhood designed to harmonize nature with the convenience of modern day life. The name "Market" is requested as it relates to the commercial aspect of the neighbourhood's marketing strategy.

The Research and Mapping Group has suggested this name may cause confusion with wayfinding due to the Farmer's Market, which is informally located at Market Square.

Naming Advisory Committee Report

"Civic Square East"

Saskatoon Land has requested that the name "Civic Square East" be added to the Names Master List and be applied to the municipal facility located at 202 4th Avenue North. The name "Civic Square East" is currently used informally for this location and would be appropriate for the purpose of wayfinding.

D. Renaming Request

Millar Place

Saskatoon Land has requested that "65th Street East" in the Marquis Industrial area be renamed to "Millar Place" to ensure consistency with street naming (see Attachment 11). The previous 65th Street East is now a closed cul-de-sac and requires a name to reflect its street characteristic. Notification letters have been sent out to two adjacent properties. No civic addresses would be affected by the renaming. No comments or concerns have been received.

Faithfull Place

Saskatoon Land has requested that "59th Street East" in the Hudson Bay Industrial area be renamed to "Faithfull Place" to ensure consistency with street naming (see Attachment 12). The previous 59th Street East is now a closed cul-de-sac and requires a name to reflect its street characteristic. Notification letters have been sent out to two adjacent properties. No civic addresses would be affected by the renaming. No comments or concerns have been received.

Options to the Recommendation

There are no options to the recommendation.

Public and/or Stakeholder Involvement

Affected property owners of the two proposed street renamings have been notified to solicit feedback on the proposal. No concerns have been received. There are no community associations in either the Marquis Industrial or Hudson Bay Industrial areas.

Communication Plan

No further communication is planned beyond the stakeholder involvement noted above.

Policy Implications

The screening of requests and suggestions for naming or renaming of municipally owned or controlled facilities, streets, suburban development areas, neighbourhoods, and parks must be in compliance with the Naming Policy.

Other Considerations/Implications

There are no financial, environmental, privacy, or CPTED implications or considerations.

Due Date for Follow-up and/or Project Completion

No follow-up is required.

Gibson Submission

City of Saskatoon Naming Advisory Committee
Community Services Department, Planning & Development Branch

Saskatoon, SK S7K 0J5

I am submitting this request in honor my late father, L. Murray Gibson.

Dad, Murray, was born in Saskatoon in 1921 to John and Martha Gibson. His parents established the family business, a photography studio, named Gibson Photos in 1925. The studio was originally located in the basement of the historic Farnam building on Broadway Avenue. Gibson Photo maintained their presence on Broadway, in various locations, during all their years in business.

Murray Gibson attended Victoria School, Nutana Collegiate and the Technical Collegiate. While Murray worked for a short time at Hobbs Glass, he spent many hours, growing up, working in the family business before becoming the owner. Like his father, John Gibson, Murray was a talented photographer. Many of their photographs and circuit pictures are displayed throughout the City capturing the heritage of Saskatoon and the prairies.

Murray enlisted in the navy, as did so many of our young men and women, to serve his country during the 2nd World War. Dad was an anti-aircraft gunner aboard the HMCS Louisburg, a Canadian corvette. On February 6, 1943 the Louisburg was bombed and almost half of the crew were lost in the Mediterranean Sea. Luckily for us, Dad managed to survive the bombing by swimming to a raft and hanging on until he, and several of his crew, were rescued. Dad's contributions did not end there, during his survivor leave at home in Saskatoon with his family, he invested his wages, earned while at sea, in the Victory Loan program before returning to active duty.

Dad's love of Saskatoon and community was evident in the many events and causes that he supported. To name only a couple, he was instrumental in the establishment of the Bridge City Dixie Land Jazz Band, as a builder. He also provided his photography services to the Saskatoon Hilltop Football Club over many years taking their individual and team photos.

Not only was Dad a war hero, a talented piano player, swimmer and small Saskatoon business man, he was a wonderful son, brother, husband, father and grandfather. Although he and Mom travelled south for many years after he sold the studio he loved returning home to Saskatoon. He provided us, his children, with many wonderful opportunities and even more wonderful memories. The Studio and indeed his home was always a welcoming place for clients, family and friends.

Please find attached several news clippings from various Saskatoon publications sharing the public story about my father. Thank you for considering our application for street naming, preferably on the East side of Saskatoon.

There's a Connection Between a Raft Floating In the Sea and Canada's First Victory Loan

There is, after all, quite a connection between a Carley raft floating in the Mediterranean and Canada's Fourth Victory Loan. Because from that loan will come money to buy Carley rafts and a great many other more costly things which are necessary to finish off this war.

Able Seaman Murray (L. M.) Gibson, who knows all about Carley rafts, mentioned torpedoes, which cost something about $12,000 each, and which, when properly aimed and launched, can do a lot of good to the Allied cause—and a lot of harm to an Axis battleship.

Able Seaman Gibson is enjoying the last days of his survivor's leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gibson, 648 Broadway. And money that he was earning when the corvette Louisburg went down in the Mediterranean, February 6, 1943, has been invested as a loan to buy at least the gyroscope of a torpedo. Able seamen in the Canadian Navy don't make much money, but they know how to save it.

It was only the idea that it might help the Victory Loan that induced this survivor of the gallant Canadian corvette to talk at all. It's "The Silent Service" young Gibson might remind you, if you asked too many questions.

(As a matter of fact, the Star-Phoenix doubts if it would have got more than a few words out of young Gibson if it had not had permission of the proper authorities to interview him.)

He was on the bridge manning an anti-aircraft gun when the little ship got her mortal wound. She had been under bombing, but it was a plane-launched torpedo that got her, to sink in three or four minutes.

With the others, he was thrown into the oily water, and was able to make his way to a raft, which eventually held eight or nine others. They could only recognize each other by voice. Their faces and bodies were black with oil.

Gibson was probably the last man to see the commander, Lt.-Cmdr. W. F. Campbell of Saskatoon. There was ample time for the latter to get away, said Gibson, but he went below on the port side to make sure everybody was out. "He proved himself," was the sailor's quiet comment. "He had ordered the first lieutenant to abandon ship, had asked if everyone was out, and had gone below himself to make sure."

Gibson said that some of the 45 survivors were still in hospital suffering from internal injuries caused by the concussion of bombs which exploded in the water. He himself had been lucky. About 40 lost their lives.

The young sailor hopes, before he reports again for duty down East, to visit his brother, research man in an important war industry, another branch of war service for which money from Victory Loans and taxes is needed.

Murray Gibson, Saskatoon sailor, who attended Victoria School and Nutana Collegiate, couldn't make a Victory Loan speech if he tried—you wouldn't expect him to.

But if you can get the picture of this quiet young chap who not so many years ago was just one of Saskatoon's thousands of schoolboys sitting there on a lounge in his dad's big studio, the same chap who on February 6, 1943 (the day Saskatoon bootleggers were crowding the liquor stores to stock up), was sitting on a Carley raft somewhere in the Mediterranean with all hell breaking loose above and around him... If you can get the picture of this lad who is going to take an advanced gunnery course, and then he hopes, get a berth aboard a destroyer... who is a Victory Bond investor, as you must be... then it's more, even, than a rousing speech by the greatest spellbinder that ever hypnotized an audience...

H.M.C.S. LOUISBURG SURVIVORS—Wearing a curious mixture of borrowed army battle dress, Red Cross garments from Algiers, and odds and ends of naval uniforms, survivors from H.M.C.S. Louisburg arrived at an East Coast Canadian port recently. Happy to be home, SURVIVOR—A.B. Lorne Murray Gibson, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gibson, of Saskatoon, is one of the survivors of the sinking of the Canadian corvette Louisburg. He was an anti-aircraft gunner aboard the corvette and has been serving in the navy since late in 1940.

Shipmates always young

It had been an uneventful day, until the Italian aerial attack delivered the fateful torpedo that exploded against the starboard hull of Murray Gibson's ship.

Four minutes later, the Canadian navy ship sank under the waves, taking young Murray with it. While the corvette carried on with its deathly descent, Murray, helped by a sudden surge of buoyancy created from an underwater explosion, shot upwards.

Join the navy and see the world the posters had said, Murray wasn't thinking much about maxims as he struggled to aim his open mouth towards the oily surface of the February-chilled Mediterranean. When he did finally bob to the surface, and gulped in his first breaths of sweet, fresh air, he joined the other flotsam — all that was left of his ship, HMCS Louisburg.

Murray phoned me at home late one night this week, bringing to my attention the February anniversary of the sinking of the Louisburg, a Canadian corvette that specialized in escorting convoys, mainly across the North Atlantic to a beleaguered United Kingdom.

I'd known Murray a long time. A talented and much respected Saskatoon photographer, he had operated the flourishing family photo business on Broadway for more years than most of us care to remember. It was more than 10 years ago that he sold out, retiring with his wife Dorothy to enjoy time away from the hustle and bustle of life behind the professional camera lens.

I'd never thought Murray to have a nostalgic side, but clearly the traumatic event on Feb. 6, 1943 — having your ship sink under you — was bound to leave a lasting impression. For Murray, however, the loss of his shipmates, many teenagers like himself, would leave the biggest scars.

Out of a complement of around 80 sailors, almost half were lost. He'd played cards, shared shore leave and rations with his shipmates, and at a too young age had seen his buddies die far from their homes. Two of the ship's crew who died had been from Saskatoon: the corvette's skipper, Lt.-Cmdr. William Campbell and able-seaman Ron McDonald.

"I'm not much for wearing medals, and I never joined the Legion, maybe I should have, but I do remember in my own way. February is always a special time for me; that's when I look back and take a little time to think about the boys on the ship," said Murray.

Even in his youth Murray had

Every February Murray Gibson remembers lost crew members of a torpedoed corvette been a keen shutterbug, assisting his photographer father in the darkroom and painstakingly figuring out the intricacies of a folding camera. Thanks to this talent, he collected a treasure chest of photo memories from his time aboard ship.

Many of the pictures in his collection are of ships, both at sea and in harbor. Others, more poignant, are of smiling young men — showing off splendid tatoos, aiming anti-aircraft guns, playing cards — full of laughter and joie de vivre. The small black-and-white pictures are the visual reminders of those times when their world was young, a time when even a war couldn't take away the spirit of adventure and hope for the future.

"So many of my shipmates never got to share that future, and I think the little wave of nostalgia that hits me at this time of year is my own simple way that I celebrate their memory."

February is the month that his scrap albums are dusted off and the pages of memories slowly turned. As he scans those picture-crammed pages, he touches a remembered part of his youth, in which joy and tragedy collided before.

His voice softens as he crosses his face; know, after all, he still see their buddies. We have exciting times; they refer to think about all good boys," he says on another page.

LORNE MURRAY GIBSON

A.B. Lorne Murray Gibson, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gibson, 650 Broadway Avenue, is one of the survivors of the sinking of the Canadian corvette "Louisburg." He was an anti-aircraft gunner aboard the corvette and has been serving in the navy since late in 1940. Able Seaman Gibson attended Victoria School, Nutana Collegiate and the Technical Collegiate. He was a member of the Leaders' Corps in the Y.M.C.A. and was an outstanding swimmer. He worked for Hobbs Glass Limited for a short time before he enlisted but always had the ambition to be a photographer like his father.

Scholarship

son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gibson, 650 Broadway, who has received word from the Toronto Conservatory of Music of his success in obtaining a scholarship for Group A in Saskatchewan. Murray obtained the high mark of 88 in grade two piano. He is a pupil of Miss Anne Cowie, Broadway.

Gibson

remembers beginnings of photo business

He was always involved, it was a family operation. Murray Gibson of Gibson Photos Ltd. had many chores to do when he was a youngster. "Rather than carry coal or feed horses I worked in the studio and darkroom. I regarded the work as my chores. My brother and I couldn't go to bed at night until the work was done, because the chesterfield in the studio was our bed, a combination studio and bedroom."

He smiled as he remembered those days in the old Farnum Block on Broadway Ave.

Gibson Photos was established in 1925 by Murray's parents John and Martha. John Gibson began as a photographer at the Winnipeg Free Press. He worked at the paper from 1904 to 1918 and then travelled to Regina where he became a free-lance photographer doing panoramic scenes. "He took photographs of all kinds of things; threshing crews, people everywhere and then he peddled his pictures. As a family we were gypsies, travelling about the province living in hotels, tents and usually selling somewhere for the winter."

"Finally in 1925 my mother insisted on stopping our travels and we settled in Saskatoon."

Martha, or Queen Gibson as her friends regarded her, wanted her children to go to school. Once the family settled and the photography business became a daily grind she became involved. John needed her in the darkroom and the technical operation, as his left hand was missing. "He adjusted to not having that hand but it did limit him."

Group pictures soon gave way to portraits and by the late twenties people were beginning to accept the camera as a family form of entertainment. Gibson Photos became involved in developing film and did their advertising through such publications as the Free Press Prairie Farmer, B.C. Country Gentleman and The Western Producer.

"During the depression we managed. We would get our shoes fixed by the shoemaker down the street in lieu of a family portrait of the shoemaker's clan. We never went hungry."

Murray Gibson remembers his parents with respect and admiration and when he returned from the war in 1945 he realized his father's health was failing and his mother was, as always, working too hard.

He not only became involved in running the business he married young Dorothy Cherry who had been working for his parents and moved into the basement of the Farnum Block.

"I really hadn't had much exposure." He caught his pun and laughed remembering. "I attended a convention in Winnipeg knowing that we were not making much money considering the work we were doing."

Returning from that convention of photographers in 1946 Murray decided his next move was to get out of the finishing business completely.

"We had to stop doing the only thing we knew how to do, but we could not compete with the people who owned big automated plants. They could offer everything so cheaply. We got into the retail end of things and began building up our photographic supplies."

Today Gibson Photos is an important retail outlet in Saskatoon, but still does some candid wedding photos and studio work. Now, just across the corner from the beloved Farnum Block, Murray Gibson has seen many changes in the business of photography over the years.

Top: John and Martha Gibson.
Above: Although Murray Gibson is involved mainly in photographic supplies, he still does studio work and the occasional wedding.

"Photography has been good to me. I have no regrets in spite of the long hours and the fact that I could never become too involved in other things." He laughed again. None of his three children Jim, Don and Lorraine, became seriously involved with photography. "It would have been nice if they wanted to carry on the business, but I don't feel any great remorse. I didn't push them and the decision was their own. I'm proud of them all." He laughed again. He has a great laugh.

Attention: Mayor Don Atchison
Planning & Development Branch

Dear Your Worship:

Re: Anton Walko (1897 to 1995)
City of Saskatoon Naming Advisory Committee

My late father, Anton Walko was a furrier and tailor in the City of Saskatoon for many years. When the Buffalo coats worn by the Saskatoon City Police were in need of repairs he was the one they would contact. None of the other local furriers wanted to take on the job as the skins were thick, tough, heavy and very difficult to work with. My father took on the task through the late 1930's, 1940's and early 1950's, after which time the Buffalo coats of the Police were replaced by cloth coats.

During church service at St. George's church on Avenue M, Saskatoon, my father noticed the altar boys outfits were mismatched so he donated his time to make a couple of new ones of each of the boys. When the priests saw this, they had some new outfits made for themselves as well.

My father, as a member of the Ukrainian National Organization, helped build the Avenue G Hall so as to preserve the Ukrainian heritage. Ukrainian educational dancing and music was taught there and attended by the following, among many others:

1. Premier Roy Romanow;
2. Judge Ernie Boychuk;
3. Judge Jerry Seniuk
4. Dr. Kosta's Wife, Irma Senuk, R.N. at St. Paul's Hospital;
5. Peter Krawchuk, Supervisor at the City of Saskatoon;
6. Walter Walko, government gas pipeline inspector; and
7. Pavlichanko Yevshan Dance Co.

Live theatre as performed at the hall and when costumes were needed, my father made them. He acted in live theatre as well.

My father also served in the Canadian Army during the First World War. He passed away in 1995 at the age of ninety-eight, on his birthday, sitting his favorite chair.

Someday, if you could see it in your heart to name a small street somewhere after my father, it would be greatly appreciated by his family and the Saskatoon Ukrainian Community. I have enclosed a picture of my late father performing live theatre at the Avenue G Hall and a picture of the aforementioned persons in front of the Avenue G Hall.

Thank you.

Yours truly,

W. WALKO

His Worship Donald J. Atchison
Office of the Mayor
222 Third Ave N
Saskatoon, SK S7J 0I5

Dear Mr. Atchison:

RE Dr. Douglas A Schmeiser, SOM, QC
Nomination for street naming

I forward to you a copy of the curriculum vitae (CV) for Dr. Douglas A Schmeiser.

Dr. Schmeiser has had a lifetime of contributions to the quality of life in Saskatoon, going back to 1956 when he graduated in law and not long thereafter set up in law practice. After his doctorate in law, he joined the College of Law as a professor. .

Even a cursory perusal of Dr. Schmeiser's CV, will indicate the large role he has played in the life of the University, and as an elected board member of the Catholic School Board in Saskatoon, and in his international and national service, constitutional law advisor to provincial governments, not to mention his service to his profession, and that of a law professor.

I commend Dr. Schmeiser as a person to be worthy of recognition to have a street named after him in Saskatoon.

With best regards,

Yours truly,

H. R. Kloppenburg, CM QC / hrk@kloppenburg.ca

RE: Marilyn Whitehead – Born Marilyn Anne Hunter Sept. 28, 1949 – Calgary, AB.

Musician Marilyn Whitehead is a tireless leader within the Arts and Music Scene in Saskatoon. As a Master Teacher, pianist and conductor and producer, she is a role model for excellence. She is an outstanding citizen of Saskatoon dedicated to the promotion of local talent, choral distinction and performance production.

Marilyn received her early musical training at St. Angela's Academy in Prelate, Saskatchewan and continued her vocal and piano studies in Saskatoon. She later had an opportunity to study with Jean Marie Scott at the Toronto Conservatory of Music and with Barbara Collier of the Canadian Opera Company. She received her ARCT (Associate Royal Conservatory) Diploma obtained a Bachelor of Music Degree from the University of Saskatchewan.

Marilyn has dedicated many years of her musical life serving many organizations. In 1972 Marilyn became a member of the Saskatchewan Registered Music Teachers' Association. She served in many capacities, including the Executive of the Saskatoon branch, as well as President. This year marks her forty first year.

In 1988, Marilyn joined the Saskatoon Musical Festival Committee, which is under the umbrella of the Saskatchewan Music Festival Association, an organization that has the distinction of being the oldest cultural organization in the province of Saskatchewan. Marilyn began her twenty-five year association with the Music Festival as the liaison between the Saskatoon Registered Music Teachers' Association and the Saskatoon Music Festival. She served in this capacity until she became the Program Coordinator for the Festival, in 1995; a position which she holds today. Her contribution to these organizations totalling sixty-six years of volunteering, speaks loudly to her dedication and generosity of spirit.

After teaching elementary school for several years, Marilyn established a private studio offering classes in voice, piano, choral and theory. Her students have received numerous scholarships and awards at local and provincial festivals and have represented Saskatchewan at the National Music Festival. Virtually every year, several of her students have been awarded the highest mark in the Province from the Royal Conservatory of Music; others have been awarded national scholarships for the highest mark in Canada in their respective grades.

Marilyn is well known throughout Western Canada as a teacher, choral director, accompanist, workshop clinician and adjudicator.

A large number of students over the years have continued influencing communities throughout the world in the arts in Canada, the United States, Australia and the United Kingdom. Students have also gone on to become Broadway stars in Toronto, New York and London, as well as locally and nationally renowned teachers that continue to inspire excellence in their teaching.

Marilyn is the Founder and Artistic Director of the Saskatoon Fireside Singers. Her choir is also recognized with awards at the local, provincial and national level.

Many hundreds of young people have been positively influenced by Marilyn's generous gift of music, whether through private instruction or as volunteers, who give their time and talent to The Fireside Singers productions, so enjoyed by our community.

Under Marilyn's forty-one year leadership, the Saskatoon Fireside Singers have entertained and delighted audiences throughout the city and province – in concerts, Nationally Awarded Music Festival Competitions, spectacular Christmas Productions, flash mobs, national conferences, and Broadway musical productions. These performances are renowned for excellence in dynamic expressive choral singing and outstanding vocal and instrumental soloists with remarkable orchestral accompaniment.

The Fireside Christmas Concerts have grown to include a choir of over 100 voices from our community. Every year, Marilyn's artistic vision includes something for everyone – familiar classics, stunning solos from the award-winning students, light-hearted numbers from the ladies' chorus and men's chorus and accompaniment from nationally – recognized artists including Guy Few, Allen Harrington and Kerry DuWors. Her singers return year after year, and the age of the choir members' span from age six to sixty.

Artistic Director, Marilyn Whitehead has produced and directed eight fully staged musicals. The 2013 production of Les Miserables was a long anticipated journey to the stage that included two encore performances, at the request of TCU Place. TCU has now become the official home of the Fireside. In 2014, the show Jesus Christ Superstar, entertained the Saskatoon Community. The calibre of vocal and dramatic talent, as well as the powerfully engaging, heartfelt chorus of eighty-five volunteer cast members astounded the audience. Those new to her Fireside productions were truly surprised to learn that the singers are all "local talent."

She was awarded the 2002 Woman of Distinction Award for her contribution to the arts in Saskatoon. Marilyn also received the Lieutenant Governor's Celebration of the Arts Pin. In 2012 she was awarded the Saskatchewan Choral Federation Pro Musica Award for her many years of dedication to the Choral Arts.

Marilyn has generously contributed her leadership and talent to countless benefits and fundraising concerts. Proceeds from the 2011 and 2012 Fireside Concert were donated to Cosmo Industries to support the Special Needs Choir purchase of performance gowns, recording costs and travel expenses.

Wife, mentor and Matriarch to her children, Marilyn is also a busy Grandmother, fully engaged in their school and extra-curricular activities.

A valued and treasured citizen serving our community, Marilyn Whitehead is a fearless leader; taking on daunting projects for our entertainment and enjoyment, year after year engaging our local talent in a way no other has succeeded. Her inspiration and heartfelt dedication have genuinely captivated the excellence and spirit of our talented community.

Dear Mayor Atchison

RE: Street Naming

We would like to put forward the name of Earle David Mallough for consideration in the selection process of street naming.

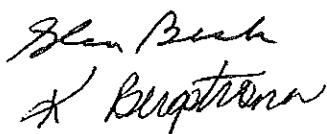

Dave Mallough played a very significant role in the technology transfer aspect of development of the canola industry. Attached is a copy of his obituary that the Globe & Mail devoted a full page to. We think it conveys a full appreciation of the story.

The man who developed canola seed has rightly been widely recognized for his achievements. The man who planted the seed has not. Naming a street after him would be an appropriate tribute.

If this proposal seems meritorious could you give us some indication of how long the decision-making process will take. Dave's only surviving sibling, a brother in Montreal, is currently in very poor health. It would be nice for him and his family if the City's gesture could be made known to them.

Thank you for your consideration.

Saskatchewan native rescued export market for canola industry

Ensured rapeseed production, became team leader for wheat project in Tanzania in the late 1970s

CHRIS EWING-WEISZ
SPECIAL TO THE GLOBE AND MAIL
MAY 5, 2012

In a single fateful winter, Dave Mallough rescued Canada's export market for what is now a $14-billion canola industry.

As a crop inspector for the federal Department of Agriculture's plant products division based in Moose Jaw and later in Regina, the Saskatchewan native drove around to farms where crops were being grown for seed to check that the fields were properly isolated from potential contaminating pollens, and that the plants were true to their variety and free of weeds. He also inspected the harvested seed to be sure it met Canadian Seed Growers' Association standards for breeding stock or commercial planting. Eventually, he rose to chief inspector. He also co-wrote a brochure to help seed growers identify "rogues" contaminating their crops. Continually updated, it is still in use today.

In 1966, Mallough moved to the research branch, becoming head of the seed section at the Regina Research Station.

In September, 1970, research presented at an international conference on rapeseed in Ste. Adele, Que., warned of fat buildup around the organs of lab animals fed rapeseed due to its high erucic acid content. Although no harmful effects had been documented in humans, it was clear that the emerging market for rapeseed as an edible oil was in jeopardy.

Ottawa decided to act swiftly. Keith Downey, a plant breeder with the federal Department of Agriculture, had developed a low-erucic-acid variety, but had only a small quantity of seed. Mallough was charged with getting that seed multiplied in time for the 1971 planting season.

The department had a relationship with a university farm in southern California, which had previously multiplied seed during the Canadian winter - but never on the scale now needed. Mallough had to find growers to do field-scale multiplication of a crop they were unfamiliar with at a time of year when many had already sown their winter crops. Moreover, he had to be sure it was planted in soil that had not been rendered saline by irrigation and had to line up enough willing growers with suitable land.

The winter of 1970-71 was unusually cold in California; frost threatened the crop, and the cold delayed its maturation until perilously close to seeding time in Canada. At one point, it seemed the Air Force might have to be enlisted to get the seed home in time; Mallough made sure that conversation was under way.

When the crop did finally ripen, Mallough had to find people and machinery to harvest and clean it to seed standards - not easily done, because the workers were unfamiliar with rapeseed, and the machinery had to be re-calibrated for the different seed size. Because the timeline was so tight, the seed had to be bagged and transported while still warm, risking its quality.

Nor was it easy to find the fleet of trucks needed to move that amount of seed back to Canada. Mallough somehow scouted up enough vehicles, although one of them mysteriously went missing en route: It turned out the driver had stopped off for a couple of days at Disneyland. Nonetheless, all the seed was brought safely back in time for spring planting and a successful season.

Thanks to Mallough's hard work, and to the co-operation of crushing plants that refused to take high-erucic material, virtually the entire western Canadian crop was changed over to low-erucic rapeseed within two years, saving the young industry from a marketing disaster.

A few years later, a similar, if slightly less frenetic, over-the-winter effort by Mallough resulted in the rapid conversion of the rapeseed crop to full-fledged canola, which is low in both erucic acid and glucosinolates. The latter are compounds that interfere with metabolism, limiting how much rapeseed meal can be fed to an animal; with this barrier removed, the value of the crop skyrocketed. Today, canola vies annually with wheat for top spot as the most valuable field crop in Canada.

Retired University of Saskatchewan economist Glen Beck, a relative of Mallough, said the situation might have turned out differently if it happened now, with researchers under pressure to work with the private sector rather than through government channels to disseminate new technology.

"Every farmer must know how different the outcome would have been had [the breeders] partnered with a private firm," Beck mused.

Perhaps hankering to make another big difference, or maybe just for the adventure, Mallough took a leave from his position in the late 1970s to go to Africa on the Department of Agriculture's Tanzania Canada Wheat Program, which was financed by CIDA. Tanzania was suffering a drastic food shortage, and the consequent depletion of the young nation's foreign exchange reserves meant that foreign aid came to account for 70 per cent of its GNP. The Tanzanian and Canadian governments developed the wheat program to bolster food self-sufficiency by introducing Canadian wheat and farming techniques.

Half a dozen enormous farms were established on the savannah of northern Tanzania's Hanang District, each with a Canadian farmer and mechanic working with Tanzanian counterparts. At a research station in Arusha, test plots refined soil management, weed control, and crop varieties; Mallough worked there for some four or five years, eventually becoming team leader for research.

Besides the questions such projects raise about the appropriateness of imported technology for local conditions, the wheat program became infamous for disrupting the grazing rotation of nomadic Barabaig herders, and for environmental damage. Conflicts erupted not only on the ground in Tanzania but between Canadian aid agencies CIDA and CUSO. Canada withdrew from the project in 1991; today, the wheat program is frequently cited as an example of how not to do foreign aid.

Yet this opinion is by no means unanimous, even now; and those who worked on the project often believed deeply in what they were doing. When former prime minister Pierre Trudeau visited on Mallough's watch, he reportedly stuck his thumbs in his belt and demanded, "What the hell are we doing here?" Nobody remembers what Mallough said, only that he was taken aback at the challenge, but answered persuasively.

"He wouldn't be doing it if he didn't [believe in it]," observed his brother Stan. But, famously private, Mallough shared amusing anecdotes and wildlife photographs from those years far more liberally than his thoughts on Trudeau's question. The one thing that is known is that when he came home, he was shocked at the "obscene plenty" he saw while others had so little.

Born on Feb. 27, 1925, Earle David Mallough was the third of four children of Earle and Kathleen Mallough of Saskatoon. His father, a salesman for the Hudson's Bay Co., died unexpectedly of an embolism in 1944, leaving 19-year-old Dave, whose older siblings had left home, as man of the house. He coached 13-year-old Stan to adulthood and helped pay for his education.

As a teen, Mallough had spent a summer working at a shipyard, which did not appeal to him, and another summer or two at a farm, which did. He consequently decided to study agriculture, graduating with a BSA from the University of Saskatchewan in 1947, and began a career with the federal Department of Agriculture (now Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada).

Mallough continued to work for the agriculture department until retirement freed him to pursue his passion for genealogy. He traced the family history back to 1750, while also sailing, curling, taking prize-winning photographs and keeping up with the latest digital gizmos.

He leaves behind his brother Stan Mallough, three nieces and a nephew and their families. He also leaves his cat, Buddy, who, according to a neighbour, "will not give up looking for Dave and allows me no way to comfort him."

Don,

Per our conversation at Christmas please see below the information on my Grandpa, George Loraas.

Consideration of my Grandfather's name on a main street or park would be greatly appreciated as the family name is everywhere around the province from a business standpoint.

George's boys are/were local entrepreneurs providing employment and service for the people of Saskatchewan (Mainly in Saskatoon) their entire lives.

All of George's offspring are/were very loyal Saskatchewan folks who put their money up and believed in their home and its people, Saskatoon and Saskatchewan.

You are a product of your leader, thus my desire to see George's (Grandpa's) name remembered forever as his mentorship influenced his boys.

Given name: George Sevaal Loraas

Born Vanscoy, Saskatchewan May 25, 1912-March 7, 1999

Married Emma Kinzel September 30, 1936 and moved to Saskatoon.

G&E spent a year and a half in Sudbury 1937 to 1939.

George worked at Sterling Cartage (hauling coal for MacKenzie and Thayer) 1939 to 1940.

McKenzie and Thayer hired George in 1940 where he ended up working for the next 30 years.

George was the husband of Emma Loraas of the Parkville Manor in Saskatoon, his contribution to the city and province were in the way of his reputation as well as his boys through the teachings and leadership he mentored.

All of George's boys are listed below with their associated companies past and present:

John Loraas (Saskatoon) Owner-Jancy Holdings

Roy Loraas-Deceased (Saskatoon) Owner-Roy Loraas Roofing, Orange Julius franchises.

Bruce Loraas (Saskatoon) Owner-Loraas Disposal

Carman Loraas (Regina) Owner-Loraas Disposal

Terry Loraas (Saskatoon) Owner-Envirotec Services

Grandma is 99 years old, her birthday is January 9. If this were ever going to happen I would like to see it while Grandma is still alive so she could be there.

Thanks for looking at this, let me know if I need to do anything more to help this process.

Dear ~~Mr. Weiman~~; Duane;

I am pleased to provide this letter as a confirmation of your leadership role with Affinity Credit Union, and that of its predecessor - St. Mary's Credit Union Limited - over a period of almost 20 years. As a Director of the Board of St. Mary's Credit Union Limited for 16 years, you were an active participant in the decision to join with other credit union partners in forming the original foundation of Affinity Credit Union in 2005. Subsequent to that initiative, we were pleased to see you continue in a delegate role, on behalf of the St. Mary's membership, within the 'new' organization - Affinity Credit Union.

Should a more detailed reference or history be required, feel free to refer the request to my attention.

All the best, and warm regards,

Mark Lane

Dear members of naming advisory committee,

RE: Naming streets/parks or civic properties
Dr. Jawahar (Jay) Kalra, MD, PhD, FRCPC, FCAHS

I am pleased to nominate Dr. Jay Kalra's name for naming streets, parks or civic properties. As you will note from his enclosed biography, Dr. Kalra is a community builder/leader who has made truly unique contributions to our city and the community at large. His exceptional dedication, leadership qualities and hard work have brought credit to the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon Health Region, City of Saskatoon and Saskatchewan.

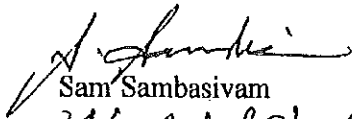

I have known Dr. Kalra for over 20 years in various capacities including as a colleague, and in Saskatoon community with various committees and organizations. Over the years I have observed how enthusiastically and consistently he has promoted and enhanced various humanity causes as a global citizen with various non-profitable organizations. I have developed the highest regard for Dr. Kalra's leadership and his ability to bring people together for the benefit of humanity.

My nomination for Dr. Kalra is based on him being a nationally and internationally recognized well-rounded physician with inspiring leadership, who has demonstrated exemplary community and volunteer services with high ethical and moral standards. Dr. Kalra is dedicated, active leader who has contributed extensively in building our community. It is through Dr. Kalra's compassion, selfless commitment and excellent efforts; he has made an immense contribution to our city, our province and has inspired others to follow his example.

Dr. Kalra has received numerous awards and recognitions including The Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal (2012); The Queen Elizabeth II Golden Jubilee Commemorative Medal (2002); Saskatchewan Centennial Leadership Award for contribution to Province (2005); "Living In Harmony" Recognition Award for Cultural Diversity and Race Relations, City of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan (2004) and he has been named 2013 RBC Top 25 Canadian Immigrant Award Winner.

If you require any further information, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Sam Sambasivam

Dr. Jawahar (Jay) Kalra, MD, PhD, FRCPC, FCAHS

Jay Kalra was born on April 2, 1949 at Aligarh, Uttar Pradesh, India. Jay is the third youngest of 11 children of Late Mr. & Mrs. Amar N Kalra. Jay completed high school in Aligarh and then attended India's central government affiliated Aligarh University to complete his Bachelor of Science (B.Sc.) degree in Chemistry and Biology in 1967, followed by his Masters of Science (M. Sc.) degree in Biochemistry in 1969. Jay is a university medalist, achieving top marks for academic excellence in Masters Program. In 1969-70, Jay joined New Delhi's All India Institute of Medical Sciences, one of the most prestigious and well-known medical and health care institutes, in India as a junior research fellow.

In 1971 Jay moved to Canada as a post-graduate student to the Memorial University of Newfoundland. He was 21 years old, the first and only member of his family to move abroad. While earning a Master of Science (M.Sc) degree in 1972, a Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) degree in 1976, and a Doctor of Medicine (MD) degree in 1981, Jay assumed an active and a leadership role among the Memorial University student population, organizing events to promote camaraderie. Jay, as co-coordinator of student activities, organized many weekend social events, sports and cultural activities. He also organized International cuisine days, other cultural and fundraising activities for worthy causes such as the wheelchair sports association of Newfoundland and Labrador.

Jay's experiences in Newfoundland were enriching, affording him the opportunity to meet people of many backgrounds and various countries of origin, an experience that has become a life-long passion. He developed a personal motto: "In Service for Community".

After completing his MD, Jay moved to Ottawa (1981-85) to do his residency training to receive certification in laboratory specialty (Medical Biochemistry, in the division of Medicine) from the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada.

In 1985, Dr. Kalra joined as a faculty member and medical staff in the Department of Pathology, Royal University Hospital. Currently, Dr. Kalra is a Professor of Pathology, College of Medicine in the University of Saskatchewan. He has served as Head of the Department of Pathology (1991-2000), as Head and Director of Pathology Laboratories, Royal University Hospital (1991-93), and Head of the Department of Laboratory Medicine, Saskatoon District Health (1994-2000). He is a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada (FRCPC), Canadian Academy of Clinical Biochemistry (FCACB) and Elected Fellow of the Royal Society of Medicine, UK.

Dr. Kalra has been involved in numerous activities at the "cutting edge" of applied biochemistry and his research eminence is universally recognized. His clinical research has been innovative and he has developed models which are clinically relevant, practical and are able to be used in health care throughout North America. Dr. Kalra's research interest is in the area of oxidative stress in the pathogenesis of heart failure and atherosclerosis. He has been a pioneer in establishing guidelines for thyroid-function testing, quality assurance program and laboratory utilization in health care. He is the first in Canada, at the Royal University Hospital to introduce sensitive thyrotropin (s-TSH) as first line test for thyroid function testing. This test and his research contributions have not only simplified the guidelines and improved health care delivery, but also brought economic benefit to societies in Saskatchewan, Canada and societies worldwide. Dr. Kalra has authored over 200 research communications and has received numerous awards and distinctions of outstanding achievement. He is a member of numerous national and international associations and has held several visiting professorship.

Dr. Kalra has also gained a nation-wide recognition for his role in Laboratory Medicine reorganization. He has been consulted by major Canadian hospitals for integration and restructuring of laboratory services. Dr. Kalra has served as the President of the Canadian Association of Medical Biochemists (1993-95), President of Intersociety Council of Laboratory Medicine of Canada (1994-96), President of Canadian Chairs of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine (1996-2000), President of Canadian Association of Pathologists (1999-2000) and first ever Canadian as President of American college of Angiology. He has been the founding member (1991) and the Director of Saskatchewan Stroke Research Centre (1998-2000). Dr Kalra also served as a member of the Clinical Review Panel for redesigning medical serves in Saskatoon District Health (1992-94). Through these leadership roles and high profile in various scientific societies, Dr. Kalra has attracted many high caliber students and research collaborations. These have been central to the development of his research legacy.

Dr Kalra is widely regarded for his excellence as a teacher of undergraduate, graduate and postgraduate students. He enjoys advising high school students in career choices. For several years, he has offered Advances in Technology in Pathology/Lab Medicine as part of "Rotary Adventures in Technology Program" for the youth of western Canada to stimulate and encourage youth towards health sciences. Dr Kalra has also given public lectures on the role of the laboratory physician and pathologist in health care for "University to the People".

Dr Kalra has been admitted as Fellow (2005) into the newly formed Canadian Academy of Health Sciences (CAHS) which is based on rigorous scientific contributions and peer review. Members elected to the Academy are recognized by their peers nationally and internationally for their contributions to the promotion of health science. As a fellow of the academy, he has demonstrated leadership, creativity and commitment to advancing academic health sciences. Election to the academy is considered one of the highest honors for members of the Canadian health sciences community.

Dr Kalra is well known as avid supporter of community, arts, culture and for his commitment to youth and human welfare. His heart belongs to community services and Volunteerism. He has been described as a "cultural ambassador" who is an active volunteer in Saskatoon and community at large for more than 25 years.
